me: http://ordinary-gentlemen.com/blog/2010/12/13/monday-jukebox-and-press-release/me: also, turns out that one guy does indeed work for Alabama, I got all his details just in case he oversteps, in which case I write him up at Encyclopedia Dramatica Anonymous: hah nice Anonymous: that works Anonymous: if you do that ill make sure they put it up as an AOTD me: Meanwhile another bunch of people have been obsessing over me and Charles Johnson so I dropped in on them today Anonymous: so it goes front page me: yeah, I know, I've been editor there since 2006 Anonymous: http://www.wbur.org/2010/12/13/anonymous
Anonymous: nice
Anonymous: cash is one of my good real life friends me: http://diaryofdaedalus.com/2010/12/11/saturday-night-screencap/Anonymous: that was me on NPR today me: ah, good me: actually, Eisler wrote something for NPR a few months back... me: ... and they edited out a criticism of the U.S. government me: so he wrote a piece about that me: he's a cool fucking guy me: just added your NPR interview to that post me: what the fuck is this?
me: http://tweetmeme.com/user/world_control Anonymous: no idea at all me: well, whatever it is, it seems to be predicting via some algorithm that my post on you will be received extremely negatively me: so it works
Anonymous: hah
Anonymous: nice
me: according to a former ally of mine, Wikileaks is like Islamist imams who send kids out on suicide bombings me: because they are "having others do their dirty work." me: unlike the Bush Administration me: you remember how Cheney led that tank brigade into Fallujah, I imagine

Anonymous: yeah me: okay, posted me: did you make that or one of your guys or someone else down the line?

me: may be about time to switch to Hushmail me: I did not long ago but got out of the habit Anonymous: someone else Anonymous: it was sent to me now Anonymous: on irc
